After leaving university, Graphic Design was a major part of my working life and personal interest. Working as part of a web team then opened my eyes to the world of web development and all of its intricacies. Having full control of the look, feel and mechanics of an application is such an amazing concept.

Completing the BrainStation Web Developer bootcamp has given me the foundation to build on and improve my craft, this is a career path in which I am very excited to begin and learn from.
